THE CORNELL LAW SCHOOL

The Board of Trustees of the University has decided, and President Day has announced, that the Cornell Law School will remain in operation throughout the war. Students intending to enter the School, as well as those who are already enrolled, have thus received assurance that the School will be in a position to accommodate them.

Because of the changes in economic, social and political conditions which have occurred, are occurring and are likely to occur in this country and abroad, the faculty has concluded that the School's curriculum should be further revised. Preliminary work on this project will begin in the near future.

Professor Wilson has been chosen President-elect of the Association of American Law Schools. During 1943 Professor Wilson will act as a member of the Executive Committee of the Association and in 1944 he will serve as President. The Association was formed in 1900, with a charter membership of 27 law schools, of which the Cornell Law School was one. Its present membership is 95.

The Frank Irvine Lecture on the Phi Delta Phi Foundation was delivered on Friday, December 11th, 1942, by the Honorable Randolph E. Paul, General Counsel to the United States Treasury. Mr. Paul's subject was "Federal Taxation in Total War." His address appears at page 141 of this issue.

The annual CORNELL LAW QUARTERLY banquet was held in the evening of the same day. The principal speaker was Mr. Mortimer S. Edelstein, LL.B. (with honors), '31, a former member of the QUARTERLY board, and Assistant General Counsel to the Port of New York Authority. His address, which was entitled "The Authority Plan—Tool of Modern Government," may be found at page 177 of this issue. Mr. Paul also spoke informally.

Sixty-one graduates of the Law School were known to have taken bar examinations in 1942. Of these, fifty-one, or 83.6 per cent, passed on the first attempt.

At an election held recently by the Student Law Association, the following officers were elected to serve for the spring and summer terms of 1943:

George Edward Schott, '43, President;

Richard Irvin Fricke, '44, Vice-President;

Marcella Julia Lipowicz, '43, Secretary-Treasurer.
